Acknowledging the crucial relevance of rehabilitating violent extremists and ensuring their reintegration into society, along with the associated centrality of risk assessment methodology, MIRAD intends to sustainably influence the intellectual debate and practical application of radicalisation screening and risk assessment tools in the prison and probation context, with the support of NGOs involved with criminal justice systems.

MIRAD's main outcomes will consist of:

NGO trustworthiness capability tool

Ideology-centred (Right-Wing extremism and Islamist extremism) and gender-centred add-on sheets to the IRS

Multiagency transition collaboration protocols

Mixed-method training approach (e-learning course; Train the trainer course; VR radicalisation risk assessment scenarios)
